A ROMANTIC JOURNEY: A CELEBRATION OF THE SSO

Our March 2nd concert celebrates a time when composers pushed the boundaries of instrumentation and composition, eventually leading to the orchestra that we know today.

This concert features the SSO's Principal Cellist, Erika Neilsen, performing Saint-Saëns' Cello Concerto No. 1, in addition to John Estacio's Frenergy, and Schumann's Symphony No. 3, "Rhenish."

The podcast for this concert, hosted by Outreach Coordinator, Nick Ross is now available for download here.

CELEBRATE WITH US!

Our March 2nd concert will also celebrate the many accomplishments of the SSO, and we have a lot to be thankful for and celebrate!

In addition to celebrating Maestro Sawa's 15th year with the Sudbury Symphony, our trombone section is celebrating their 20th anniversary; our Education and Outreach programmes have grown by leaps and bounds, reaching over 2,000 young people in the past year alone!

Thank you for helping the orchestra reach the heights of artistry and share its music with the Sudbury Community. We hope you'll be there to celebrate with us on March 2.

ORCHESTRA NEWS

Congratulations to SSO's Principal Percussionist, Ian Gibson, who performed as featured soloist with the Timmins Symphony Orchestra on February 9, 2013. Ian performed Rosewood Dreaming for Marimba and Orchestra; one of his favourite pieces to perform!

The SSO is pleased to welcome our newest second violinist, Erin!

Erin Gilsenan moved to Sudbury recently, and used to perform in the talented Huronia Symphony Orchestra, serving Simcoe County. We look forward to seeing Erin in the second violin section at the next concert!

The SSO is currently looking for new musicians. Members of the orchestra are asked to commit to one evening rehearsal per week, as well as additional rehearsals during concert weeks. Musicians can perform as few as one concert per season, or as many as seven. If you are interested in performing in the Sudbury Symphony, please contact info@sudburysymphony.com
